

1608 Rhode Island Avenue, NW
3rd Floor
Washington, DC 20036

INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY

Received – 1/12/06

The Brookings Institution

General Information

The Governance Studies program offers part-time and full-time internships throughout the year, typically for the duration of a school semester.

Responsibilities of an intern include research and some administrative assistance for the program's current projects.

Successful applicants are generally college juniors, seniors or graduate students with a demonstrated interest in American politics and public policy. Both undergraduates and graduate students in political science, public policy or a related field are encouraged to apply.

Resumes are kept on file for a six-month period and will be submitted for consideration each time a position becomes available. Please note that all positions are unpaid.

To apply for internships, please send a cover letter, resume, and writing sample to:

Attn: Intern Coordinator
Governance Studies
The Brookings Institution
1775 Massachusetts Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20036
GSCOMMENTS@brookings.edu

Current Opportunities

Research Internship for Winter-Spring 2006

With Thomas E. Mann

The Governance Studies program has an opening for an intern to assist Senior Fellow Thomas Mann. The intern will assist on various research projects and administrative work as the need arises, but will focus primarily on two areas: election administration and congressional redistricting. A demonstrated interest and academic background in these areas or related fields of public policy will be considered in the application process. Applicants must have strong research and writing skills, preferably demonstrated through prior independent research.

The position will run approximately from January through May. Hours are negotiable.

Research Internship for Winter-Spring 2006:

With the Religion and Civil Society project

The Governance Studies program has an opening for an intern for the Religion and Civil Society project.

The intern will assist on various research projects and administrative work as the need arises. A demonstrated interest and academic background in these areas or related fields of public policy will be considered in the application process. Applicants must have strong research and writing skills, preferably demonstrated through prior independent research.

The position will run approximately from January through May. Hours are negotiable.