A quality driven national association in higher education seeks an intern who is organized, can work independently and likes working on multiple projects. Tasks include working with media and other database lists, developing international programs, working on website, starting a new member campaign and more. You will gain practical experience in higher education, communication and marketing.

The National Association of Schools of Public Affairs & Administration (www.NASPAA.org) is a national nonprofit focused on improving the quality of higher education as it relates to public administration degrees, such as the Masters in Public Administration (MPA). We represent 250 universities across the USA and several abroad.

We are currently in the process of revamping our image, increasing outreach efforts, and an developing overall communications marketing plan. We seek an intern to assist our efforts. NASPAA has a convenient downtown location near metro center station and offers a flexible schedule .

Please submit your resume and a short paragraph explaining your interest to Scott Talan at:
