Description

This thematic research seminar explores the history of Congress—the first branch under the Constitution—and its role in making public policy, as well as other issues in contemporary politics and government. The subject matter will cover the relationship between Congress and the Presidency, the organization and operation of Congress, the emergence of a highly polarized electorate and government, and the 2020 election. The course is also designed to provide students with a balanced understanding of the broader political process and the political environment in Washington.

Goals and Objectives

The Washington Center emphasizes experiential learning and critical thinking and writing, which will be reflected in the work of this seminar.

Goal #1: Students will be able to relate their internship experience with the skills and substance learned in their course. Throughout the quarter, students will be asked to discuss activities undertaken during their internship.

Goal #2: Students will attend at least one congressional hearing, a think tank seminar or lecture, or NGO/advocacy/nonprofit event.

Goal #3: Student will be required to prepare a briefing memo that describes the subject under discussion at the event, including any legislation or regulation under consideration, the prospects for passage or implementation, and the likely political reaction.

Goal #4: The two research papers will require both evidence-based research.

Class Hours

The course will meet on Tuesdays from 10am until 1pm. Room: 318. Attendance at class is mandatory. Students should schedule other activities, including those related to your internship, so as not to interfere with class meetings. Any request for an absence must be approved by the instructor in advance.

Students are encouraged to attend weekly UCDC Monday Night Policy/Politics Forums.

In the event of a weather emergency, UCDC follows the federal government’s decisions about delays and closures.

Office Hours

Office hours will follow class on Tuesdays from 2:00-3:30 pm in 325 or by appointment. Students should schedule appointments with the instructor either in person or through email at: jal221B@gmail.com. All students are encouraged to meet with the instructor to discuss their research papers.

Requirements and Evaluation

Course requirements are: (1) regular class attendance and participation in discussions; (2) two research papers on an assigned topic; (3) one additional applied writing assignment; and (4) participation in an internship.

Student papers must comport with the original scholarship requirements of a UCDC research seminar. Materials developed for prior classes may not be substituted or quoted in the papers required for this course. An account for this class has been created on Turnitin. The instructor will provide log in information.

Students are required to complete the weekly readings and participate in seminar discussions.

Classroom Conduct

- Electronic devices of any type may not be used during this class unless specifically approved by the instructor.
